Young Griffo Badly Frozen.

Australian prize fighter, best known as "Young Griffo." was found to-day nearly frozen to death in a vacant lot within half a block of the Bridewell. Both hands and feet were frozen, and surgeons are of opinion that amputation of the hands will be necessary. Griffo for many years was a fistic marvel, and was considered one of the most skilled and scientific pugilists who ever donned boxing gloves. Of late years Griffo had been leading a fast life and was penniless. It is thought he wandered towards the Bridewell in search of food and shelter, as he was but recently discharged from that institution, where he had been Berving a sentence for disorderly conduct.

FUNERAL AND BURIAL.

Monumental Tomb Carved by a Famous Sculptor-All Leo's Money Left to the Holy See.

ROME, Feb. 2.- The recent revival of the publication of reports of the imminence of the Pope's death has led to inquiries being made of the Chevalier Centra, valet de chambre to his Holiness. The chevalier declared that the Pope's health is excellent. "But," he added, "my master, for some time past, has spoken almost solely of his mortal end, as though it were near. The Pope concerns himself daily with the questions of his death and successor. He has settled all arrangements for his funeral, down to the minutest details. He says that the members of his family, and not the government for the necessary permission for interment in the basilica of St. John Lateran. A monumental tomb is ready for fixing in its place. It is the work of the famous sculptor Giuseppe Luchetti, and has cost 300,000 lire ($60,000), which has all been

The tomb is a beautiful work of art. The sarcophagus is surmounted by the recumbent figure of Leo XIII in full pontificial robes. Guarding the tomb are lifesize statues of St. Thomas and St. Francis, and also a statue of the Virgin and two angels, all in white Carrara marble. The interment will take place in the early morning with an entire absence of ceremony. By the Pope's express order the actual casket in which the body will rest will be of plain white wood.

The Pope leaves scarcely anything to his relatives in his will. He quite recently divided among them his purely personal estate, so that his bequests are mere gifts of remembrance. All the money he now possesses, about 300,000,000 lire ($60,000,000). he bequeathed to the treasury of the Holy See. All these things are perfectly familiar the inmates of the Vatican, for it is the Pope himself who constantly talks about them. He speaks quite as freely and as often of his successor on the papal throne. His consuming fear is that his political work, so persistently and patiently performed and so fruitful of practical benefit to the church, should be nullified by some rash inheritor. He would like to have the assurance that he will be succeeded by Cardinal Rampolla, but he knows that to be almost impossible, and failing it he would prefer Cardinal Gotti or Cardinal Vives y Tuto. He disapproves in particular the candidatures of Cardinals Vanuteli, Svampa and Oreglia. Yet one of these three will probably be the next Pope. His Holiness regards Cardinals Oreglia and Vanutelli as violent and dangerous, and Cardinal Svampa as too much of a priest and too little of a diplomat. Nearly every day the aged pontiff receives | said he thought they were following Mark | ances. groups of three or four cardinals and pa-terrible consequences. Leo XIII's bete noir is Cardinal Oreglia, who is, perhaps, the most likely to be Pope of all the members of the Sacred College, He has frequent disputes with Cardinal Oreglia, and the story is told in the Vatican that a short time ago, when Leo reproached the cardinal for the public use of politically intemperate language, Cardinal Oreglia took off his cardinal's robe and threw it at the Pope's feet.

LATIN-AMERICAN UNITY.

Mexican Editor Urges Combination

Against the United States. MEXICO CITY, Feb. 2.-El Popular, a penny daily, argues for Latin-American unity "in order that the southern nations of the world may present a strong and compact front to their great neighbor, the United States, which is more powerful, if not more valiant, than the Latin-American nations and may yet under the pretext of bestowing the blessings of peace on these countries, impose its rule by force and then destroy Latin-American liberties. The famous Monroe doctrine is simply a means of preserving the equilibrium between the United States and Europe. The two tigers, Europe and the United States, stand opposed to each other, and the prey they desire is Spanish-America. While these hungry beasts of prey are disputing we should fortify for our common defense. El Imparcial, a Liberal daily, says that it was certainly not Chile which lost the battle of arbitration in the Pan-American conference. Chile rightly maintained that this conference was not called to act as an international tribunal for the settlement of disputes between the Latin-American nations. Chile was completely justified in her attitude regarding arbitration.

There was a long silence and then one of the members of the Socialist Labor party took the floor and asked the speaker about the relation of socialism to taxation. Klenke explained the matter, and it then became evident that the questioner was not seeking information, but an argument, and used this means of getting into it. In reply to his answer he began to criticise the Socialist party as not advancing the fundamental principles of socialism. The Socialists in the hall readily saw how matters were drifting and that they had met their enemy-the Socialist Labor party. The man having the floor made some statement about the trades union movement, and then Klenke, with flushed face, stepped to the front of the platform and began to speak as he had not spoken during the his room. All he has to do is to "ring up" evening. He said the Socialist Labor party had done all in its power, assisted by capitalists, to break up the trades unions of in the places of striking cigar makers of New York city. "You are trying to break up trades unions," he said, "and so is the capitalist. There is nothing 'scientific' in our argument. Does the official organ of your party bear the union label? No. it is printed by 'scabs,' and it is your business to 'scab' labor wherever you can." The argument became more heated and "Mother" Jones went to the rear of the hall and sat down beside the three members of the Socialist Labor party and tried to keep them quiet. She failed and was becoming entangled in the argument herself when Chairman Hamilton declared the meeting adjourned.

ACQUAINTANCESHIP OF REV. D. P. PUTNAM AND HUGH H. HANNA.

It Began at Wabash College Many Years Ago-Sunday Visitors at the Hotels.

The Rev. Douglass P. Putnam, of Princeton, Ind., was at the Denison yesterday. He came here Saturday and visited Hugh H. Hanna during the evening. He had and his experience recalled several amusing incidents of their acquaintance.

The Rev. Mr. Putnam attended Wabash College and Mr. Hanna was a classmate. He went to a seminary in New York, and while there, in 1868, received a call from a young man who approached him familiarly and finally said: "Why, don't you know Hugh Hanna?" Then they had a good visit. Mr. Hanna was quite young and ill health had reduced him to a mere skeleton. He was on his way to Europe, and "Dug" Putnam, as he was called in those days, saw him aboard ship.

The classmates did not meet again until a few weeks ago, when the Rev. Mr. Putnam preached here at the First Presbyterian Church. Mr. Hanna was in the congregation, and at the conclusion of the of the first to shake hands with the minister. He talked of incidents of many years ago and finally the Rev. Mr. Putnam was again obliged to plead that he did not know to whom he was talking. When he and a fit subject for the hospital. On this occasion he was hale, hearty and more Saturday he called Mr. Hanna's home by telephone. The person answering insisted on knowing what business the caller the same room in which the telephone is located, and he was next asked to explain most bitter enemy trades unions have to more definitely his business with Mr Hanna. He replied: "I wish you would this evening. I wish to return a visit he made me thirty-four years ago."

"Room So and So wants a ready-made rye highball" sang out the telephone operator to the clerk. "What's that?" asked the latter, failing to catch the exact meaning of the order. The operator repeated the order but again the clerk was stupid. For some reason he had never heard of a "ready-made rye highball." However, after considerable telephoning and more or less explanation it was learned that the guest had asked for a "Runnymede rye highball." The operaof refreshments, had called out the order as she had understood it. On another occasion, when a guest telephoned down to send him a "whisky sour" the young woman promptly ordered "whisky and celery.

ADMIRAL BROWN RETURNS.

He Visited His Son at the Annapolis

Naval Academy. Admiral George Brown arrived home last night from the East where he went some time ago with General McGinnis, Indianapolis's postmaster, Admiral Brown left General McGinnis in Washington, but expects him home in a few days. The general is supposed to be doing some good for the Indianapolis postoffice. Admiral Brown's main purpose in going East was to visit his son at the Annapolis Naval Academy and he spent a considerable part of his time there. Last week the young man finished his first semi-annual examination in a manner highly satisfactory to his father. This examination is looked upon as a sort of test, it being understood that if the cadet can pass this one satisfactorily his course in the school is likely to be successful. Admiral Brown says extensive improvements are being made at the Annapolis school. It is the intention of the government to spend about $12,000,000 there. The above portrait is that of Countess Mogelstud, of Chicago, Ill., whose gratitude for the benefit received from the use of Dr. Miles' Nervine prompted her to make this statement:

"It affords me great pleasure to add my testimony to the very excellent merits of Dr. Miles' Nervine. Although I am past 80 years of age I find it soothes the tired brain, quiets the irritated nerves and insures restful sleep. I never feel contented without a bottle of it in the house."
